Improver Level Quiz Question

Andrew Robson posted this very short (2 minutes) video quiz. This highlights a major shift in modern bridge thinking and teaching that has evolved over the last twenty years. Hats off to you if you get it right – many won't!!

Calling the Director in a BBO Duplicate Pairs Match

A correction to the information I gave last week in response to a question about the access the director has to table history when asked to deal with an issue that has arisen at a table:

The BBO system captures every 'event' (bid made, card played, chat message, alert etc.) that occurs at a table, including the exact time. This information remains available to the director up until the moment that the event finishes, i.e. until the last board is completed by the last table, but then frustratingly disappears.

So, if a problem arises at a table, call the director immediately, while the board in question is being played. Remember that the director is there to help, so don't try to sort things out yourselves.
